

BANDROOM PROJECT UPDATE

Amersham Band - building a new music facility for the community

In this issue:

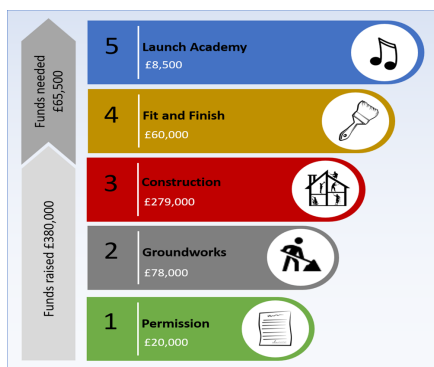

- Message from our Trustees
- Building work is on target
- Fundraising status

Message from the Trustees: The Trustees are pleased to report that good progress is being made in building a new music facility in Amersham. The project will enable the band to create greater opportunities for people to learn and play music together. When completed, the new building will be the home of Amersham Band's new Brass Academy.

"Our 3 children have benefited immensely from joining the band, not just musically but in confidence, social interaction and teamwork." - parent

Building Work is on Target

After completion of the site enabling works last Summer, we appointed local builder Claridge and Hall to construct the building. Starting in November, the foundations were completed before Christmas and work has continued with building the external and internal walls. Electricity and water services have been connected and work is starting on the roof structure. Our project manager and architect are visiting the site weekly to check that all is according to plan.

Fundraising Status

Thanks to the generosity of many local people, together with several grants, our fundraising total now stands at £380,000. This is sufficient to pay for the building construction. We are now aiming to raise a further £65,000 to enable us to fit out and finish the building and to launch the music academy.

We are crowdfunding to help us finish the project. Can you help?

Visit www.avivacommunityfund.co.uk/amershamband to make a donation.